The true solution of the marriage and divorce question lies with the homes more than with the legislatures. It is more a matter for education and training than of legislation. The girl whose early education has been gained on the street, whose selfishness has been gratified at the expense of her parents and whose preparations for marriage has lacked an acquaintance with the common duties of the home-keeper is a standing candidate for the divorce court. The young man who has grown up without responsibility, who has wasted his youth and pawned his manhood to idle and dissolute habits is another. The parents are mostly responsible for the negligence and mistaken kindness that unfits children for the duties of life. Good fathers usually train good husbands and good mothers usually produce good wives. Like prohibition, the question of marriage and divorce seems to rest more upon the early training of the individual than with the law. Educate not legislate, is the motto for the reformer.

It may be that the barking dog never bites, but one who thinks well of his shines allows others to experiment with barking dogs.

"You can't have everything in this world," as you've often heard, but there are not over a half dozen things that are worth having.

If everybody minded his own business, lawyers would starve.

Women like to be petted as if they were children, but it is not wise to call one of them childish.

Let a milk-fed Angora cat out of the house and he'll run under a barn after a rat. And you don't alter a boy's longing to play in the mud by dressing him in a white Fauntleroy suit.

Many children are disappointing, and so are nearly all adults

The Low Cost of Buggy Transportation has Always Been ACKNOWLEDGED

When prices of farm products were high, costs were not considered. Now, however, at the present prices of farm products, don't you think it is time to practice economy and ride in a buggy. Besides consider the ease of mind when you can depend on the instinct of the horse to steer the buggy. No punctures, no engine trouble, no adjustments, no dirty hands and soiled clothes.
